

FISKARS VILLAGE 2012

The history of Fiskars Village dates back to the year 1649. The village has seen the manufacture of iron and the beating of copper; more than a million plows have been made here; the first orange-handled scissors saw the light of day in Fiskars Village, which has been part of the industrial and cultural history of Finland in many ways, shape and form.

Today, Fiskars Village, a center of Finnish art, design and crafts renowned far beyond the country's borders, is a unique place to live and visit. Being both home and workplace to more than a hundred creative people, the village offers inspiration to all who come here. Friends of art, culture and history as well as the outdoors all enjoy a visit to Fiskars Village. High quality restaurant, accommodation and conference services along with various shops and workshops offer visitors things to see and do all year round.
